The unique records published here are the work of one dedicated researcher, Mrs. Ruby Peters of Piedmont, Missouri. More than a decade ago, she began the transcription of tombstone inscriptions in Wayne and adjacent counties. As time passed, she expanded the information by adding records taken from published obituaries which she has collected for more than twenty years.

The result is a group of cemetery records that go far beyond the usual dates of birth and death. Mrs. Peters has added, in a great many instances, maiden names of women, names of parents, also including maiden names, and places of birth when outside of Missouri.

The compilation includes every known cemetery in the county with the possible exception of three or four which have been reported to her but which she has been unable to verify.

Wayne is one of our oldest counties -- it was formed from Cape Girardeau in 1818; and it is one of our most hopelessly "burned" counties. Courthouse fires in 1854 and again in 1892 destroyed all prior records. It is hoped that the meticulous work done by Mrs. Peters will help those researchers who, to date, have found great difficulty in probing into a Wayne County past.

The list of cemeteries appears on the following page, and an index of all the surnames starts on page 91.

AUSTIN-MEADOR CEMETERY history, written by A. Z. Kinder in 1970.

Early history. Established about 75 years ago. The selection was made by Aunt Sis Meador, wife of Austin Meador. The plot of ground given by Austin Meador and John G. Allen, grandfather of John W. Allen. First buried there, infant of Bazzel & Mary Smith, the retiring place of four Baptist ministers, John G. Allen, A.R. L. Meador, Samuel C. Howard, David Joseph Lane. There are four soldiers, Henry Birmingham, Union soldiers in Civil War Aaron Howard, Clarence Kinder, and Robert Howard WW I. Those lost by drowning, Roy Meador, George Finn, Maggie Howard, Lee Allen, son of Thomas and Frances, burned to death.

AUSTIN MEADOR

On Big Lake south, Rev. John Allen place, down gravel road in the woods, on a hill.
